

PCF5
Session on Open Educational Resources

The session will introduce participants to the philosophy of Open Educational Resources, share some examples of current initiatives and of some planned activities, and link to a range of papers and practical interactive sessions.

It will be organized in three main interconnecting parts.

- 1 Read and learn
Pre-conference resources/activities

Background information on the topic and some of the key issues
Annotated list of links to resources to support reflection
Link to PCF5 discussion board and wiki

- 2 Listen and learn
Panel session

What is OER? – the philosophy and the vision

Mike Smith and Cathy Casserly, Hewlett Foundation

Mike could give the vision and Cathy could speak about health related OER projects

How does it work? – an exemplary initiative

Rich Baraniuk, Connexions can't come but we could play the video from TED talks

David Wiley cannot come either

An alternative here could be Brenda Gourley for institutional vision and Andy Lane for implementation challenges

What are other applications and issues?

Frits Pannakoek (No proposal or paper)

Nadeem Khokhar (Proposal but no paper received)

Peter Bateman (WITHDRAWN from participation in PCF5)

Andy Lane (Proposal and paper received)

How do we advance the OER movement?

Susan D'Antoni on behalf of the UNESCO OER Community

Handout

Links to the afternoon sessions and other related conference sessions (eg copyright)

- 3 Engage and learn
Exploring resources and developing skills

Papers and discussion session

Wayne sessions